ORIGIN OF THE ENGLISH NATION. - In the the last number of Littell's Living Age there is a lecture which was read by Edward A. Freeman, Esq., before the Literary and Philosophical society at Kingston-on-Hull, being the first of three lectures on "The Origin of the English Nation." The lecturer claims that the English people are of Low-Dutch descent, and that their forefathers "came from those lands where the Low Dutch blood and the Low Dutch speech abide to this day." He says: There is an England, which was England before Englishmen settled in the Isle of Britain, namely, the land from which Englishmen came to the Isle of Britain, and part of that land keeps the English name to this day." This land, he argues, is the province of Friesland, which includes the people scattered along the coasts and islands of Holland up to Holstein and Sleswick. There duchies originally bore the name of Angeln, now confined to a small district in southern Sleswick, forming a sort of corner between the Baltic and the river Slie. "The land is the oldest England, the land which has always uninterruptedly borne the English name, no doubt from times older by many ages than the first English settlement in Britain." He says tribe after tribe, Angles, Saxons, Jutes, Frisians, pressed across the sea to seek new homes in the Isle of Britain. They fought each other and fought also the native Britons. In the lapse of time, however, they were formed into one nation, and that nation came to be known by the name of the tribe which had won for itself the largest heritage of the conquered soil. The name was Angles, or English, which has been handed down to their posterity. The lecturer says "The nation was known as English, and the nation gradually gave its name to the land in

"These Low Dutch settlers in the fifth and sixth centuries are the true forefathers of the present English people." He says that there were infusions from other quarters, but Low-Dutch was the basis. He has much to say about the Teutonic element in the English lan guage, and shows wherein the Low Dutch and the English are alike. "The English language, after all changes, remains now, as it was a thousand years back, an essentially Teutonic speech. He claims that the English are Low-Dutch ir speech and Low-Dutch in blood Wo are Lew-Dutchmen, who have been separated from the parent stock for thirteen hundred years"-modified by time, peculiar influences and a variety of circumstances, but still Low Dutch in all essential characteristice.

DEATH OF A DESPERADO. - REMARKABLE STATEMENTS OF A PRISONER. - George Cook alias George Coleman (a colored man), who was sentenced to the county prison about eighteen months ago for five years for breaking into the house of James McAnall, in the borough of Columbia, died in that institution on Friday last. It will be recollected that he attempted to make his escape, with some other prisoners, a few months ago, and came near shooting Prison-Keeper Sensenig. It seems from the statements made a few days before his death to a fellow-prisoner that his career has been an unexampled one for crime from early youth until his incarceration in our prison. When about fifteen years of age, while doing chores at a gate keeper's near the Relay House, between Washington and Baltimore, together with another person, he shot and killed a man and a woman. He was closely pursued, but climbed a tree and hid himself in its branches, and there eluded his pursuers. After midnight he started for New Jersey, where he lived in caves made in the pine forests. He said he also cut a banker's throat during the war, but he did not state where. He also killed a huckster woman in Philadelphia, and obtained nine dollars in pennies and fifteen dollars in notes. And that he killed a man at the drove yard who had $1,500 upon his person. He said he knocked a judge down with a brick in Philadelphia and obtained $9,000 from him. (?) In most of these crimes he had accomplices, but he refused to divulge their names. He assisted others in numerous instances to blow open safes. He said that he was but twenty-nine years of age, and had been in jail thirty seven times, but was never sentenced to so long a term as the one he was serving when he made the disclosures. He managed to break out of jail frequently. He said that at the time he was arrested in Columbia it was the only time he was ever caught without some deadly weapon about him .- (Lancaster Pa.) Gazette.

PARADISE AND RAILROADS. -It has probably not occurred to many Bible readers to calculate the price of Paradise by the measurement of modern acres. The calculation would no doubt be interesting if we had the data from which to make it. A contribution to the desired data was made yesterday in the Senate, when an honorable gentleman asserted that Paradise itself would not be worth ten cents an acre if situated in the Northwest without a rail road to render it accessible. This is a foreible illustration of the necessity of railroads to give value to land. The shrewd, calculating, commercial American would set a small value upon the Garden of Eden without a railroad to make it easy for him to go and come, as well as to render its fruits susceptible of being turned into money. He would be unhappy, even in Paradise, without morey in his pocket. The idea that Paradisc should be reached by improved means of conveyance is not new, since several years ago Hawthorne wrote his pleasing fancy of "The Celestial Railroad." There has been much speculation as to the location of the Gar deu of Eden, but we believe that no one has ed. Me been so bold as to surpose it to be situated in fact;

Who have injured themselves by a cutain practice, indulged in, a habit tre quently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt, even when asieop, and, if not cured, rendermarriage impossible, and destroys both mind and halfs should apply immediately.

and body, should apply immediately. and body, should apply immediately.

What a pity that a young man, the hope of his country, the pride of his parents, should be snatched from all prespects and enjoyments of life by the consequence of deviating from the path of nature, and indulging in a certain secret habit. Such persons must, before contentations, and indulging the certain secret habit.

reflect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote connubial hap-piness. Indeed, without these the journey piness. through life becomes a weary pilgrimage, the prospect hourly darkens to the view, the mind becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness of another becomes blighted with your own. DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE.

When the misguided and imprudent votary of pleasure finds that he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those, we from education and respectability, can alon befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease make their apsymptoms of this horrid disease make their appearance, such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, nocturnal pains in the head and limbs, dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity till at last the palate of the mouth or ti., Lone of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awful disease becomes a horrid object of commission tion, till death puts a period to his dreadful sufferings, by sending him to that Undiscovered ferings, by sending him to "that Undiscovered Country from whence no traveller returns. It is a MELANCHOLY FACT that thou sands full victims to this terrible disease, owing to the unskilfulness of ignorant pretenders, who, by the use of that DEADLY PGISON, MFR.
